

Gullah Ghosts: Stories and Folktales from Brookgreen Gardens in the South Carolina Lowcountry with Notes on Gullah Culture and History

Meet . . . ~ the shrieking spirit of Crab Boy lost forever to a fierce Murrells Inlet marsh creature . . . ~ an ingenious slave matching wits with his plantation owner . . . ~ the unique inhabitants of isolated Sandy Island in the Carolina Lowcountry . . . These are the ghosts of African-American Gullah culture once so alive on plantations along the coast above and below Charleston, South Carolina. This brief collection (10,000 words, four illustrations) of charming Gullah folktales includes one actual ghost story, Crab Boys Ghost, local history and folklore, and notes on Gullah history and culture. An excerpt from her book, Lowcountry Ghosts, is also included. Please Note: This book is a part of the Tales from Brookgreen Series. These selections of charming Gullah stories and folktales, including one actual ghost story (Crab Boys Ghost), as well as observations on Gullah history and culture, are also included in Lynn Michelsohn's longer collection, Tales from Brookgreen: stories of ghosts, romantic heroines, historical characters, and mysterious visitors in the South Carolina Lowcountry. The Series: Brookgreen Gardens storytellers share history and folklore from Murrell Inlets popular tourist attraction near Myrtle Beach in Lynn Michelsohn's series, Tales from Brookgreen--Folklore, Ghost Stories, and Gullah Folktales of the South Carolina Lowcountry. The Storytellers: Two sixty-ish Southern ladies serving as Hostesses at Brookgreen Garden told these stories of the South Carolina Lowcountry to visitors during the middle of the Twentieth Century. Now, Lynn Michelsohn recounts them to a wider audience. The Setting: Brookgreen Gardens, a sculpture garden and wildlife preserve created in the 1930s by Archer and Anna Hyatt Huntington from four historic Lowcountry rice plantations rich with folklore, displays American sculpture along shaded pathways winding through ancient live oaks draped with trailing Spanish moss.
