

The Book Of Life

Two complete and corrected books featuring Chapters of Life and Beyond The Tenth. Who can separate their faith from their actions, or their belief from their occupations? Who can spread their hours before them, saying, This for my love and this for myself; this for my spirit and this other for my body? All your hours and days and years are but wings that beat through space and time from one self to another. Whosoever wears their mortality as their best garment were better naked, for the wind and the sun will tear no holes in their skin. And whosoever defines their conduct by ethics imprisons their song-bird in a cage, for the freest song comes not through bars and wires. In reverie you cannot rise above your achievements nor fall lower than your failures. In adoration you cannot fly higher than your hopes nor humble yourself lower than your despair. And if you would know Peace, be not a solver of riddles. Rather look about you and you shall see your love running and laughing with the children. Look into space; you shall see him hovering in the cloud, outstretching his arms in the lightning and descending in rain. You shall see him smiling in flowers, then rising and waving his hands in trees. You would know the secret of death? But how shall you find it unless you seek it in the heart of life? The owl whose night-bound eyes are blind unto the day cannot unveil the mystery of light. If you would indeed behold the spirit of death, open your heart wide unto the body of life, for life and death are one, even as the river and the sea are one. In the depth of your hopes and desires lies your silent knowledge of the beyond; and like seeds dreaming beneath the snow your heart dreams of spring. Trust the dreams, for in the dreams is hidden the gate to eternity. What is it to die but to stand naked in the wind and to melt into the sun? And what is it to cease breathing but to free the breath from its restless tides, that it may rise and expand and seek Joy unencumbered?
